Local Journalism Matters

In an era of unprecedented misinformation, it is important to have a trusted voice in the media. We at harryrosenberg.net strive to be the unbiased source for all things news. Who else is advocating for Blatz beer? Who else dares to question the media elites?

Who else is telling the stories that matter? That's why we come to you today with open hands, begging for a taste of your hard-earned cash. Just a little bit, please! Open your check-books (or your damn chip card tap card devices millennials) and give your favorite writer a few dollars. If we can reach our modest October goal of $10,000 in donations, I vow to continue doing what I've always done—being here for you, the reader. Thanks you.

Just My Thoughts

This year has sucked
for sure that's true
it has ruined my plans
for that I'm blue

To not see dancers
up on the stage
Makes me pretty angry
and filled with rage

Social distancing is a pain
Of being 6 feet away
Geez... all I really want to do
Is go to Jill's and spend the day.

I can hardly breathe
when I wear my mask
It's such a frigging pain
in my ass

My glasses get fogged up and I can't see
All the beauty
that's in front of me

I miss the excitement
of the loud playing songs
A cold beer and naked women,
you can't go wrong
But for now they've taken away all the fun
I can't wait until this virus is done.

There will be dancing and play
Both day and night
Lap dances and drinks
What more can I say

So let's all hope
that these days go quick
When covid and fear
are no longer a risk

The Doctor Is In!

Hey folks! Another month passing by means another edition of The Doctor Is In!, and boy, do we have a treat in store for you. We had the opportunity to interview Dr. Harry C. Rosenberg, a chiropractor practicing in the Greater Cleveland area. His insights about chiropractic and the world in general are sure to be as enlightening as they are entertaining. Enjoy!

Hi Dr. Rosenberg. Let's start off with a simple one. Why become a chiropractor?

Thanks for talking to me today. I didn't always want to be a chiropractor. In fact, my dream job as a child was to operate the car-crushing machine at the junkyard! However, after some experimenting in my college dorm, I found myself drawn to the world of chiropractic, and I've been working in the field ever since.

Isn't the term for the practice "chiropractic"?

Who's the expert here? Who went to school for it? I'll call it what I want to call it.

So Doc, who should go to a chiropractor?

We'll treat anyone who walks in the door! Some patients come to us with chronic pain, some with a crooked back, some who just want to feel more relaxed. I don't discriminate, I just get to yanking!

What is the typical age range of patients visiting your practice?

While most of our patients tend to be a little bit older, chiropractic works wonders for those of all ages. One time, I did a full body adjustment on a 100 year old woman. I kid you not! The amount of dust that came out of her made it feel like I was shaking a dang rug. Her bones must have been barely hanging on. That's why you have malpractice insurance!

What does a successful doctor such as yourself do in his spare time?

Well, I've always fancied myself an enjoyer of the fine arts. Just this last week, after a failed spinal adjustment on the family dog (don't ask!), I took the wife and kids down to the art museum to let everyone cool down. It worked well enough, but it's going to be a while before my daughter fully forgives me!

Anything you'd like to mention before we wrap up?

I just want my patients to know that they're in great hands with me. Our promise at Rosenberg Chiropractic is to always make your body sound like a bowl of Rice Crispies—Snap, Crackle, Pop!

Dear Harry

i'm worried about moving in with my significant other. in the past relationships i've been in i've only lived with one other person and to make a long story short, it did not end well. most people tell me "you won't know unless you try" but that just sounds too open ended for me. i have lived alone for almost 4 years now so i can't even remember what it was like to live with another person. do you have any advice with living with new people/ people in general? also, what's your take on living with a significant other? - friend

Dear friend,

How exciting! By the tone of your question, I'm guessing that you are either in the process of moving in with this person or seriously considering it. If you haven't finalized living arrangements, try it out for a little while. Have your significant other stay with you for an extended period of time, or go to their place and do the same. There is no greater teacher than experience. If your living situation has already been decided, take some time to set boundaries. Are there certain non-negotiables for you? Do you need to distinguish your own personal space? Who will take care of what household chores? Unfortunately, the open-ended advice you have been given rings true—you won't exactly know what you're getting into until you're fully immersed. However, taking some preparatory steps can help you navigate the unknown.

What's your favorite fish? - the fish

Dear the fish,

I've always been particular towards the larger members of the animal kingdom, and my opinion on fish is no different. The majestic Lake Sturgeon comes to mind immediately, along with the wonderfully elegant East Atlantic Swordfish. In terms of a killed fish that I am munching on, a finely grilled hunk of salmon with some lemon juice and capers tends to appropriately sate my appetite.

FINE CONVERSATION

"What are you thinking about?"
"..."

SORRY
I TOLD HER

"What do you want?"
I WANT TO COME
"What do you want?"
SEAN

I HEAR YOU
MOTHER- Feelings of nostalgia, wistfulness. Look towards your left. A stone. Across it: Mother.

DOWN
WHO IS THAT- The trees are rustling.

I'M NOT SURE HOW I CAN HEAR YOU

IT'S HERE-
A cricket leaps between us.
