HOW TO WRITE A HIT SONG

Musicians always act like their job is so hard. You have to learn music theory, they say. You need to learn how to play an instrument. You aren't allowed to drink juice in the recording studio. Since when has art been confined by such pointless rules? Luckily for you, dear reader, I have decided to put together a quick and easy guide to songwriting. Enjoy!

Step One:

You need to pick an emotion. Seems simple enough, right? It is. For my song, I'm feeling a little blue, so my emotion will be "sad". Write your emotion down on a whiteboard.

Step Two:

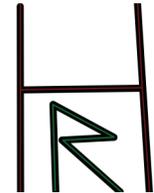

Choose a metaphor. I've always thought that raindrops on a window do a good job of replicating tears—what can I say, I have the mind of an artist! Now that you have your emotion and its representative metaphor, it's time to put them together.

Step Three:

Pick up the nearest guitar and get to strumming. It doesn't matter what you play, as long as you do it while singing your little tune. Use your metaphor to influence the words you speak! After a few attempts, get to recording. Before you know it, you'll have a hit on your hands!

For the curious, here's the chorus I wrote using my emotion and metaphor:

*Ooh (ooh) I'm so saddddd
It's like a raindrop running down
the window....
I'm so sad my tears are like the rain
Ooh.....*

RETAIL ROUNDUP

As anyone who has worked in customer service can tell you, there is no telling what type of person is going to walk through your workplace's doors. On a daily basis, I am confronted with both the horrors of life on our planet and the joys, with the young and the old, with the jubilant and the decrepit. Their only uniting factor seems to be an incredible ability to impact my life. Every once in a while, someone will come in who so greatly affects me that I feel the need to record the interaction in my notebook. Here are some favorites from the last couple of months.

July 1st:

"3 customers just came in. Said hello, no response. Said have a good one as they left, no response."

July 15th:

"Old man just came in sounded exactly like Garfield in the Garfield TV show."

July 25th:

"Two girls just came in with a dog. Dog was like jumping on the shelves and shit. It tried to come around the counter. Absurd."

August 17th:

"Insane customer. Said she was too broke to afford kettle corn. Told me I looked like an actor in a comedy. A stoner comedy. Told her I would take it as a compliment. She seemed surprised. Said I could call her a 70s hippy. Waited a beat. 'Because I am one!' Solid timing, dumb joke. Asked my name. Looked at me and said I was hairy. She likes her men hairy—'real Neanderthals!' Creepy and weird."

August 25th:

"Little kid just came in w/ plastic vampire fangs in his mouth. Took them out, along with a rope of spit that proceeded to coat the front of his shirt. He then proclaimed: 'Eww, it's slimy!' Incredible."

September 6th:

"Shortest woman I've ever seen just came in and asked for a job."

September 12th:

"Woman just came in and instantly said, 'There's a lot of foreign students coming here soon...' Absurd way to open a conversation."

September 15th:

"Woman just pronounced nougat as nugget."

SWIMMING LESSONS

Check this out!

When I was in third grade, I couldn't jump off the diving board

I knew how

I watched my friends do it

I swam in the deep end.

Every time I climbed that ladder something stopped me.

I stared into the water

Everyone was watching

Everyone knew that all I had to do was jump

I would stand there on the edge of the board and my body would freeze.

There was no reason for this performance

I don't know when I finally did it

Don't know how I was convinced

I just remember that feeling

I put the car in drive.

DEAR HARRY

At night, I get so so so hot, you wouldn't believe how hot I get. My room is Arizona. However, I take off my covers to cool off, but then I get way too chilly. It makes going to sleep a hassle rather than a relief. Any advice? - joelbeech

Dear Joel,

Man, I feel that. Here's what you do. Next time you're feeling hot, start removing articles of clothing. Eventually, you should reach an equilibrium. If not, stick a limb or two out of the covers. This should serve to cool you down whilst the rest of your body is heated by the blankets. If this also fails to make you comfortable, then all hope is lost. You are cursed to an eternity of poor sleep and your life will suffer greatly as a result. Sorry!

my boyfriend recently purchased a whistle and blows it all around town all day everyday. when he puts it on it's like he becomes a different person. how to i knock him out of this? - concerned

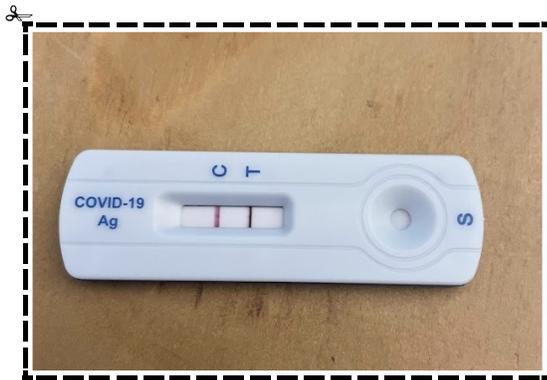

Dear concerned,

This doesn't sound like a problem to me! In the lawless world we reside in today, there is a need for upstanding citizens like your boyfriend. It seems as if he is merely attempting to uphold the rules and regulations justly set upon us by our elected officials. Next time you think about interrupting his melodic calls, ask yourself one question—whose side are you on?
